ABSTRACT

In a professional environment, relationships among team members can suffer due to insufficient interaction, often caused by time constraints, personal mental health challenges, and other factors. This lack of engagement can negatively impact both efficiency and overall performance. This project aims to enhance workplace relationships by encouraging team members to interact through an internal online platform. Effective database design is essential for shaping user interactions within the system. With a well-structured database in place, the platform can incentivize participation through rewards, fostering engagement and strengthening connections among employees. As a result, workplace interaction increases, leading to improved collaboration, efficiency, and overall productivity.
